

Register of Buildings of Local Value in Pleshey

Status:
Planning guidance

 Pleshey Parish

Design and conservation
01245 606294

michael.hurst@chelmsford.gov.uk

October 2026

Register of buildings of local interest Pleshey

Back Lane, Old Mission Hall*

Former Mission Hall, now a house. Red brick with stone dressings. Gabled plain tile clad roof. Large triple chimney stack to front. Metal strapwork to front door. Early twentieth century. Converted c.1979.

Significance

Small Elizabethan style mission hall of architectural and historic interest.

Back Lane, Pleshey Hall*

Former national school, now house. Red brick with buff brick dressings. Gabled roof covered in slate, dormers with decorative barge boards, ornate chimneys. Converted c.1986.

Significance

Architectural and historic interest.

Back Lane, Eastwyn*

Cottage. Timber framed with timber weatherboard and plaster cladding. Gabled slate clad roof. Sash windows. Early-mid nineteenth century.

Significance

A humble timber framed cottage of architectural interest. Group value with Swiss Cottage (grade II listed) and The Cottage (see page 2).

Register of buildings of local interest Pleshey

Back Lane, The Cottage*

Cottage. Timber framed and plastered. Gabled plain tiles clad roof. Bay window to front. Eighteenth century.

Significance

A humble timber framed cottage of architectural interest. Group value with Swiss Cottage (grade II listed) and Eastwyn (see page 1).

Grange Road, Post Bridge House

House. Timber framed and plastered. Gabled plain tile clad roofs to main ranges. Slate clad catslide to rear. Modern crosswing at eastern end. Late eighteenth or early nineteenth century. Known as 'Post Bridge Newhouse' in the nineteenth century.

Significance

Architectural interest.

Park Road, Parkgate

House. Timber framed and plastered. Gabled slate covered roof with catslide to rear elevation. Sash windows to front elevation. Modern inline extension to roadside.

Significance

Architectural interest.

Register of buildings of local interest Pleshey

Park Road, Yeomans

House. Timber framed and plastered. Gambrel plain tiles clad roofs. Gabled dormers. Late eighteenth or early nineteenth century. Modern extensions to rear.

Significance

Architectural interest.

Pleshey Road, Radar Hut 1 and Radar Hut 2

WWII radio listening station, now converted into two houses. 1940s Nissen huts used by the Admiralty to track German shipping, including U boats in the north sea. Radio masts in the adjacent field demolished post WWII. The station remained in use during the Cold War. Converted c.2017.

Significance

An extremely rare example of a WWII radio listening station.

Pleshey Road, Dropshots

House. Timber framed with plastered walls. Gabled slate covered roofs. Red brick chimney stacks. Sash windows. early nineteenth century. Known as 'Dropshots' in the nineteenth century.

Significance

Architectural interest.

Register of buildings of local interest Pleshey

The Street, Yew Tree Cottage/The Vicarage*

Cottage. Timber framed with plastered walls. Gabled slate covered roof. Red brick chimney stacks. 1.5 storey range to rear. Casements windows.

Significance

Architectural interest and group value with the listed buildings to the northeast on The Street.

The Street, Garden Cottages*

Cottages, now 1 house. Timber framed and plastered. Gabled slate clad roofs. Casement windows. Early nineteenth century.

Significance

Architectural interest and group value with Mount Stores (grade II listed), The Gardens (grade II listed) and Mount Villas (see below).

The Street, 1 and 2 Mount Villas*

Cottages. Roughcast render with exposed timber frame, with display gables. Gabled plain tiles clad roofs. Red brick chimneys. Casement windows. Late nineteenth century.

Significance

Picturesque pair of cottages, group value with Mount Stores (grade II listed), The Gardens (grade II listed), Garden Cottages (see above), The Leather Bottle PH (grade II listed) and Little Moat Cottage (grade II listed).